2001-02 Outlook

Veteran Irish Squad Sets Sight On A Return To The NCAA Tournament

David Graves, Ryan Humphrey and Harold Swanagan Set to Lead Notre Dame's Defense of BIG EAST West Division Title

For the first time in the 96-year history of the Notre Dame men's basketball program, a championship banner will hang in the rafters of the fabled Joyce Center. Six years after relinquishing their stature as a basketball independent to join the BIG EAST Conference, the Irish proved that they belong.

Last season's return to the NCAA tournament for the first time since 1990 pointed Notre Dame back in the direction of national prominence. The Irish ended the 2000-01 campaign with a 20-10 record and finished the season with its first national ranking since 1987 (19th in the final Associated Press poll).

But perhaps the most defining moment of all a year ago came on Feb. 24, 2001 in Notre Dame's 85-61 win at Virginia Tech. On that Saturday afternoon in Blacksburg, Va., the Irish secured their first BIG EAST regular-season title by winning outright the league's West divisional crown, a full week before the end of the regular season. On its way to the league crown, Notre Dame won eight straight conference contests, its longest winning streak since becoming a league member in 1995-96.

Once an afterthought in the always tough and competitive BIG EAST, Notre Dame could finally call itself — CHAMPIONS.

A seasoned and veteran Irish team returns in 2001-02, but this year's squad may be up against some skepticism. The early departure of two-time consensus All-American Troy Murphy to the NBA and the graduation of point guard Martin Ingelsby are certainly significant, but don't look for second-year head coach Mike Brey to be conjuring up any sympathy.

"With the losses of Troy Murphy and Martin Ingelsby, we all look at this upcoming season as the glass being half full rather than half empty," Brey says. "We certainly lost two very good players in those two guys, but it would be insulting to our players returning and selling them short if I were to start crying the blues about this being a total rebuilding year."

Four key players return from last season's championship squad — senior tri-captains David Graves, Ryan Humphrey and Harold Swanagan and junior Matt Carroll. The return of these experienced veterans should provide strong leadership both on and off the court for Brey's squad. These are the four players which will provide the foundation for this season's Irish team.

"I feel good about this team when I look at the four leaders that we have returning who are going to be leaders of the team — Graves, Swanagan, Humphrey and Carroll," Brey says. "These are four guys who have won a championship and played a lot of college basketball. When you start right there, you have four players who have been through the battles and hung a BIG EAST championship banner."

"Despite the fact that Troy Murphy and Martin Ingelsby aren't back, I think we have a lot to work with. I'm excited about this team and about this season."

McDonald's and Parade All-American Chris Thomas will be thrown into the mix quickly. The heralded freshman point guard out of Indianapolis, Ind., who was named Indiana's Mr. Basketball in 2001, is expected to immediately step into the role as starting point guard. He will be Notre Dame's floor general at the onset of the first practice.

And while the Irish fortunes at point guard are in the hands of a rookie, Brey is confident in the capabilities of Thomas.

"Chris is mature beyond his years," Brey says. "We need him to be a key guy for us this season and he is going to play a critical role for us. Chris knows what the expectations are and I believe he is ready for the challenges that await him at this next level."

With the loss of Murphy and the transfer of Ivan Kartelo, Notre Dame's frontline depth poses concern for Brey. Junior Jere Macura, sophomore Tom Timmermans and freshman Jordan Cornette are all expected to see significant playing minutes behind Humphrey and Swanagan.

Macura was more of a perimeter player last season, but Brey feels that he can better utilize the Croatian's talents moving him closer to the basket. He (Macura) and the team will benefit if he becomes more of a frontline player.

"Moving Jere from the perimeter to the frontline will be better for him and for our team," Brey says. "I think that with this move the door is open for him to contribute in a number of different ways. He was somewhat confused this past season with his role on the team, but I think he is ready this year to step in and help us out immediately."

Brey also expects an increased role during the upcoming season for Timmermans who made steady progress last year.

"Tom is going to see more playing time this season," Brey says. "We're going to need him to step in and contribute. Similar to Jere, there is going to be a lot of opportunities for Tom this season."

Cornette's contributions this season will be more from a defensive standpoint. With his length and quickness, his impact initially will come as a defender. In Brey's system this season, he will be a stopper coming off the bench guarding a small forward or a big guard.

"Jordan was coached very well in high school," Brey says. "Coming in this season all he is going to have to worry about primarily is his defensive play. We will bring him along slowly offensively, but the way he is going to help us this year and get playing time is through his defensive play."

While depth up front poses several question marks, Notre Dame's perimeter game may be one of the strongest in the BIG EAST with the return Graves and Carroll, the Irish's top three-point shooters each of the last two seasons. The combination of Graves and Carroll provides Notre Dame once again with a very healthy outside shooting arsenal.

"I look at Matt Carroll as being the fourth captain on this team," Brey says. "I look for him to emerge as a real big-time college guard this season. He does so many things well and is such a consistent player at both ends of the floor."

Look for sophomore Torrian Jones to have a greater role on the squad this season. The second-year guard had a very typical freshman season as he made adjustments to the college game. During the second half of the year, he played extremely well and contributed in a number of different ways. Jones saw some time at point guard, but showed that he is more comfortable playing the two guard position.

"I feel good about where Torrian is right now," Brey says. "He had the type of year as a freshman that you expect all rookies to have — up, down and all over the place."

Mike Brey led Notre Dame to its first BIG EAST regular-season crown in his first season a year ago. Under Brey, the Irish advanced to the NCAA tournament for the first since 1990 and posted its second consecutive 20-win season.

At the end of the year we were able to get him in some critical situations and he responded to the challenge. He learned how to win and how to be a college guard watching Matt Carroll, Martin Ingelsby and David Graves."

Chris Markwood, sidelined all of last season following knee surgery in the pre-season, appears healthy and ready to step in and contribute off the bench during the upcoming year. He was able to practice with the team the last couple months of the season, and in the final weeks played extremely well. Brey expects Markwood to have a defensive presence on the floor in the Irish backcourt.

Senior walk-on Charles Thomas also gives the Irish additional depth in the backcourt.

Brey once again will employ a strong man-to-man defense, which was embraced by his squad a year ago. With the addition of Thomas and the return of Jones, Graves and Carroll, Notre Dame will have more depth in terms of speed in the backcourt. The athleticism and quickness in the backcourt should allow Brey to move his man-to-man pressure up to halfcourt.

"I'm looking for us to be able to push our man-to-man defense off the three-point line and up to halfcourt, and perhaps even Ryan Humphrey made an impact in his first season in an Irish uniform after sitting out the 1999-2000 campaign following his transfer from the University of Oklahoma. He was the team's second-leading scorer (14.1 pts.) and rebounder (9.0 rebs.) and led the team with 79 blocked, the second most in a single-season by a Notre Dame player.

three-quarter court," Brey says. "With the depth we have in terms of overall team speed at guard, I think we are going to be able to pressure opponents sooner. This hopefully will result in us getting some easier baskets."

Notre Dame ranked as one of the nation's top teams in field goal percentage defense as the Irish finished 10th in that category a year ago after holding opponents to just 39.3 percent accuracy from the field. Brey's squad won a championship a year ago because of its field goal percentage defense and its presence on the defensive boards, allowing opponents few second chances. With a mix of zone in its predominantly man-to-man defense this season, the Irish will look to again be strong in this area.

"Last year we embraced becoming a field goal percentage defensive team," Brey says. "We have players on this team who are good position defenders. They know how to guard their opponent as well as position themselves on the boards. We played well as a team defensively and learned to help each other out."

Despite the loss of Murphy's 9.2 rebounds per game, Brey believes that his team once again can excel in this area. Humphrey, who averaged 9.0 boards per game, and Swanagan will be Notre Dame's rebounding leaders. Graves and Carroll are also strong rebounders from the perimeter.

"We know what Ryan (Humphrey) and Harold (Swanagan) are capable of doing on the boards, but David (Graves) and Matt (Carroll) also can rebound from the wings. Torrian (Jones) also showed last year that he is a strong rebounder, and I expect Chris (Thomas) will be better in this area for us. With the loss of Murphy, the emphasis will be on becoming a better rebounding team from the perimeter.

"I believe that we can be a solid rebounding team this year. It is important that we once again have a presence on the boards. Our perimeter players have to remember to help us out and to stay in and around the basket. We were successful last year because our guys on the perimeter did such a good job rebounding."

While the losses of Murphy and Ingelsby are significant, Brey has a confident ballclub heading into the upcoming campaign. Winning the BIG EAST's West Division crown last season is something that cannot be underestimated considering the rise this team made in the league ranks throughout the entire season.

"Winning last year helps us deal with losing Troy and Martin this year," Brey says. "A major core of the players who helped us win that championship a year ago are back. We have men on this team who understand and know what it takes to win a league title.

"Winning a championship was a mystery and such an elusive thing when I talked about it to them at the beginning of last season. I think it will be easier to address it this year because now we know what it is like to pursue and reach the goal of winning a title."

Harold Swanagan, a starter in 15 games last season, will serve as a team captain this season along with teammates David Graves and Ryan Humphrey. One of just two players with significant playing experience up front, he and Humphrey will be key frontcourt players early on in the 2001-02 campaign.

Frontcourt

The loss of Troy Murphy poses concerns about Notre Dame's depth up front. Brey will look to his two senior captains, Ryan Humphrey and Harold Swanagan, for leadership and experience.

Humphrey was Notre Dame's second-leading scorer and rebounder a year ago as he averaged 14.1 points and 9.0 rebounds. The 6-8, 233-pound product of Tulsa, Okla., returned to the hardwood after sitting out the 1999-2000 campaign following his transfer from the University of Oklahoma. A third-team all-BIG EAST honoree, Humphrey electrified Irish crowds with his athleticism and leaping ability.

Brey will look for Humphrey to be more of an offensive force this season. Last year, he was a scoring threat both down low and from the perimeter as he registered a team-best 50.5 percent shooting percentage from the floor. While he proved to be both a scoring and rebounding threat, Humphrey's signature became his ability to block shots from anywhere on the floor. His 79 blocked shots, a team high, were the second most by an Irish player in a single season.

"Ryan's ready to become more of a threat offensively this season," Brey says. "We're going to run more sets for him this year and get him the ball more often. He must continue to have a defensive presence on the court."

"I would like to see Ryan become one of the top three rebounders in the league and to average double figures in that category. I think that's realistic for him to accomplish. He also must be ready to be a leader for us."

Harold Swanagan became a starter midway through last season and was in the Irish starting rotation throughout its run to the league title. The 6-7, 252-pound forward averaged 15.1 minutes per game, 4.1 points and 3.4 rebounds, but must expect to play more minutes and become more of an offensive threat around the basket this season.

The Hopkinsville, Ky., product is the type of blue-collar player all good teams need; defending, rebounding and screening are all a part of his game.

"Every team needs to have a player on its team like Harold," Brey says. "He brings so many intangibles to this squad. Harold is well-liked and well-respected by every player and coach because of his unselfishness and work ethic. He will be a key part of the team this season. The one thing Harold must do is become more of a vocal leader throughout the entire year."

Jere Macura's move from the perimeter closer to the basket will give the Irish more frontline options, experience and depth. The 6-9, 226-pound junior from Split, Croatia can expect to see more playing time this season after averaging 7.7 minutes, 1.9 points and 1.6 boards per game a year ago.

With Macura playing nearer to the basket, Brey can take advantage of his athletic ability which will give him more flexibility on the court to either shoot from the perimeter or drive to the basket. He has shown the ability to be an outside shooter and three-point threat as well as a strong rebounder.

"I think Jere is going to feel more comfortable playing away from the perimeter," Brey says. "He's still going to be able to shoot from the outside, but I think he is a better player when we can take away some of his ballhandling responsibilities and from defending an opposing player on the perimeter man-to-man. Moving him closer to the basket helps us better utilize his skills."

Tom Timmermans' 6-11, 248-pound frame makes him the lone true big man on this team. The native of Driehuis, Netherlands saw action in half of Notre Dame's contests a year ago (15 games).

Brey needs Timmermans to step in and challenge for playing time immediately.

"I'm excited about the strides that Tom made last season and throughout the offseason," Brey says. "The door is open for him this season to have an impact on this team. He is a skilled player who challenges all of our guys in practice every day. Tom is big and strong and has a physical presence on the floor that he must learn to use to his advantage. He listens well and wants to become a key figure on this team."

Jordan Cornette will have a specific role on this team — and that will be as a defensive specialist. With the number of scoring options the Irish have this season, the 6-9, 200-pound product of Cincinnati, Ohio must concentrate his efforts on having a defensive presence when he is in a game.

Cornette averaged 14.0 points, 7.1 rebounds and 4.1 blocked shots per game in final scholastic season at St. Xavier. An honorable mention all-state selection, Cornette's two greatest attributes are his long reach and quick feet.

"Jordan's impact initially as a freshman will be as a defender," Brey says. "We have enough players on this team who are going to score points for us, so what Jordan has to do is concentrate on being a defensive specialist. With his length and quickness, he'll be another shot-blocking threat for us when he is on the court. All Jordan has to worry about when he comes in is improving his defensive play. That's how he is going to battle for playing time this season."

Winning the BIG EAST West Division regular-season title last season....

"I think it is huge that this team can call itself champions. I wanted this more for them last year than anything else. There is something about being part of a championship team. I placed a lot of emphasis last season on hanging a championship banner and what that would mean to our program."

The confidence of winning a regular-season title and how it will carry over into the upcoming season....

"There is a certain level of confidence with winning a regular-season title and wearing a championship ring. I think that level of confidence will carry over into this season. One thing I will continually emphasize point to this year is the championship banner hanging in our building."

"I sometimes think that winning a regular-season championship is underrated; it doesn't get the respect that it deserves. Winning a regular-season title is very important and this team needs to try to chase that again."

Losing Troy Murphy and Martin Ingelsby....

"We obviously can't replace these guys overnight. They meant so much to this program last year from a talent and leadership standpoint. I think that winning last year helps us deal with losing Troy and Martin this year."

The motivation for the 2001-02 season....

"This team will have a lot of motivation this year without the preseason expectation being as high as it was a year ago. I expect that we will once again have to go out and prove ourselves. This team is motivated and hungry to go out and win another championship. They like the feeling."

Getting back to the NCAA Tournament....

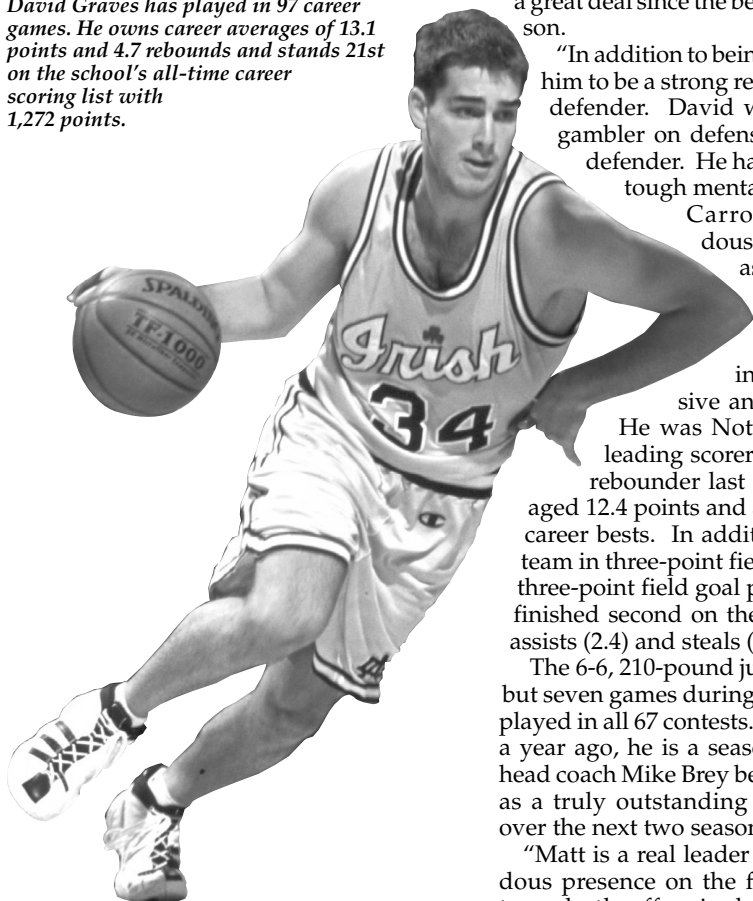

"The real challenge for us is going to be getting back in that bracket. We have to think about getting back to the NCAA tournament. When you can do that a number of years in a row, then you are considered a program. That's what we are aiming for this year."

The leadership of tri-captains David Graves, Ryan Humphrey and Harold Swanagan...

"David, Ryan and Harold all deserve the opportunity to serve as captains during the upcoming season. I'm excited for them and for our team that they will have the chance to lead us. They have been through a great deal during their careers here at Notre Dame and have always conducted themselves and represented this University in a very positive way. They have handled themselves like men and were so instrumental in helping us win our first BIG EAST championship. They certainly taught me a great deal and were very helpful to me during my first season at Notre Dame. David, Ryan and Harold each have their own distinct style of leadership that is respected by all of the players and coaches on this team."

2001-02 Outlook

David Graves has played in 97 career games. He owns career averages of 13.1 points and 4.7 rebounds and stands 21st on the school's all-time career scoring list with 1,272 points.

Backcourt

The return of veteran players David Graves and Matt Carroll and the addition of rookie Chris Thomas will give the Irish a backcourt which features speed, versatility, depth and experience. The Notre Dame perimeter game should once again flourish with the return of Graves and Carroll, two of the top three-point shooting threats in the BIG EAST.

Graves was the team's third-leading scorer last season as he averaged a single-season personal best of 13.8 points, while also grabbing 4.7 rebounds per game. He ranked second on the team (behind Carroll) in three-point field goals made with 62 and connected on 42.4 percent of his shots overall from the field. Graves also finished as the team's stealsleader with 49.

Brey looks for the 6-6, 208-pound senior from Lexington, Ky., to embrace his role as a team leader and captain. The loss of Murphy in the post will clear out that the area underneath the basket and should give Graves more open areas to score from. He showed the most improvement in his game by becoming a more disciplined defender.

"I like David's attitude because he is prepared to help lead our team this season," Brey says. "He wants to be a leader and captain on this squad. David has matured a great deal since the beginning of last season.

"In addition to being a scorer, we need him to be a strong rebounder and good defender. David went from being a gambler on defense to a disciplined defender. He has to continue to be tough mentally."

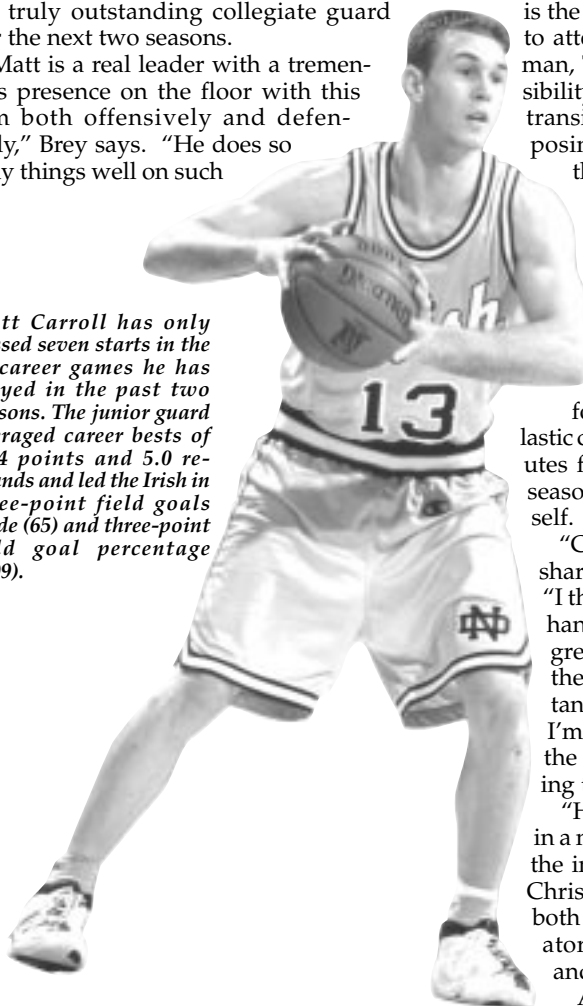

Carroll made tremendous strides a year ago as a sophomore; he is perhaps the most complete player on the team in terms of his offensive and defensive skills.

He was Notre Dame's fourth-leading scorer and third-leading rebounder last season as he averaged 12.4 points and 5.0 rebounds, both career bests. In addition to leading the team in three-point field goals made and three-point field goal percentage, Carroll finished second on the team in both the assists (2.4) and steals (0.9) columns.

The 6-6, 210-pound junior has started all but seven games during his career and has played in all 67 contests. A 30-game starter a year ago, he is a seasoned veteran who head coach Mike Brey believes will emerge as a truly outstanding collegiate guard over the next two seasons.

"Matt is a real leader with a tremendous presence on the floor with this team both offensively and defensively," Brey says. "He does so many things well on such Matt Carroll has only missed seven starts in the 67 career games he has played in the past two seasons. The junior guard averaged career bests of 12.4 points and 5.0 rebounds and led the Irish in three-point field goals made (65) and three-point field goal percentage (.409).

a consistent basis. We need him to be an aggressive offensive player for us as well as a big-time defender and strong rebounder.

"Matt's going to be very instrumental in Chris Thomas' development as a player this season. In terms of his own development as a player, it's going to be scary because I believe that he has all the fundamentals to be a very good college guard."

Torrian Jones may be one of the team's most improved players when the upcoming campaign begins. He played well at the end of his rookie campaign averaging 1.3 points and 0.7 rebounds and saw important playing minutes toward the end of the season. The 6-4, 185-pound product of Fairless Hills, Pa. gives the Irish tremendous depth off the bench as both a shooter, ballhandler and defender.

"I feel very comfortable with the progress Torrian has made since the start of his rookie season and where he is as a player heading into this year," Brey says. "He is very confident in his abilities. What Torrian has learned to do is keep it simple; he now understands how to make his shot come to him than him hunting for it."

The arrival of Chris Thomas has generated great enthusiasm and anticipation. He is the first Mr. Basketball in Indiana to attend Notre Dame. As a freshman, Thomas will have the responsibility of running the Irish team in transition and breaking down opposing defense. Brey anticipates that with Thomas in the lineup, the 6-1, 165-pound point guard will get Notre Dame up the floor quicker and in transition faster.

Thomas averaged 23.3 points, 5.7 assists and 3.7 steals as he led his Pike team to the Class 4-A state crown for the second time in his scholastic career. He will play a lot of minutes for the Irish, and the key this season will be for him to pace himself.

"Chris certainly is going to see his share of playing time," Brey says. "I think he is physically capable of handling it because he is such a great athlete. Pacing him during the season is going to be important both physically and mentally. I'm confident that he is ready for the challenges of what we are going to throw at him this year.

"He is able to generate his offense in a number of different ways — on the inside and from the perimeter. Chris is going to be a spark for us at both ends of the floor. He's a creator who can change the tempo and style of play in a game."

After being sidelined with a

2001-02 Outlook

Sophomore Torrian Jones should see considerable more playing time this season for the Irish in the backcourt. Jones will likely be a backup to Matt Carroll at the two guard, but may also see some time at point guard.

knee injury, Chris Markwood is looking to establish his role on this Irish team. The 6-5, 185-pound point guard from South Portland, Me., will have a strong defensive presence on the court, especially on the perimeter. A former Mr. Basketball in Maine, Markwood averaged 16.0 points and 2.5 rebounds in his senior season.

When Thomas is out of the game, look for Markwood to play in his spot. He's more comfortable than Jones handling the ball and quarterbacking the team in the backcourt.

"I'm excited about how far along Chris Markwood has come and that his is healthy again," Brey says. "He worked hard extremely hard to get himself back to the point last season where he was able to practice with us the last couple of months. We went from knowing what his status was going to be to anticipating that he is going to help us out this season."

Charles Thomas begins his fourth season as a walk-on with the program. A competitive player, the 5-11, 160-pound product of Flint, Mich., is a key individual on the team because of his work ethic and the way he challenges his teammates in practice.

PRESEASON NOTES

The Captains:

Seniors David Graves, Ryan Humphrey and Harold Swanagan will serve as Notre Dame's tri-captains for the 2001-02 campaign. Both natives of the state of Kentucky, Graves and Swanagan hail from Lexington and Hopkinsville, respectively, Graves averaged 13.8 points and 4.7 rebounds last season, while Swanagan netted 4.1 points and 3.4 rebounds. Humphrey was the second-leading scorer and rebounder for the Irish a year ago with averages of 14.1 points and 9.0 rebounds.

First Year Success For Brey:

Notre Dame's 19 wins during the regular season under Mike Brey represented the most wins by an Irish coach in his first season. He also became just the second coach in school history to take his team to the NCAA Tournament in his first year as a head coach and the only first-year coach to lead his team for a first-round victory. John Dee also made the tournament in his first season in 1964-65, but lost in the first round to finish 15-12.

Wing-ing It:

The perimeter play of outside shooters David Graves and Matt Carroll give the Irish a deadly three-point shooting arsenal. The duo made 127 (57.9 percent) of Notre Dame's 219 three-point field goals last season and attempted 323 of team's 570 shots from beyond the arc. Carroll shot 40.9 percent from three-point range, while Graves made 37.8 percent of his attempts.

Ironmen:

David Graves and Harold Swanagan have played in all 97 contests during their Irish careers — neither one has missed a game. They saw action in 30 games as freshmen and juniors and played in 37 contests in their sophomore season. Graves has earned 81 starting appearances during this three seasons, while Swanagan has made 51 starts.

Block Party:

Notre Dame set the single-season team record for blocked shots last season with 178 in 30 games for an average of 5.93 blocks per game. The previous mark of 145 was set by the 1991-92 Irish team. Notre Dame had 110 blocks during the 1999-2000 campaign. Ryan Humphrey led the Irish with 79 blocks, the second-highest individual single-season mark in school history and ranked 18th in the nationally with 2.7 blocks per game.

Defense, Defense:

Notre Dame ranked 10th nationally in field goal percentage defense as the Irish opponents shot just 39.3 percent from the field and 31.4 percent from three-point range. Only one opponent, Indiana, shot above 50.0 percent from the field against the Irish, while four teams — Indiana (53.3), Miami of Ohio (45.3), Rutgers (49.1) and Connecticut (49.2) — shot better than 45.0 percent from the field against the Irish last season. The last Notre Dame team to hold opponents to under 40.0 percent shooting was the 1996-97 squad (39.4).

A Big East Moment For The Irish:

Notre Dame's eight consecutive BIG EAST wins last season against Pittsburgh, West Virginia, Syracuse, Georgetown, Pittsburgh, St. John's, Rutgers and Virginia Tech marked the first time since the Irish joined the league in 1995-96 that they posted eight straight wins over league foes. Notre Dame also finished the season six games above the .500 mark for the first time since becoming a league member.

Big East Moment II For Irish:

Notre Dame's five straight road wins at Georgetown (78-71 on Jan. 27), Pittsburgh (75-67 on Feb. 3), West Virginia (69-66 on Feb. 11), Rutgers (81-59 on Feb. 14) and Virginia Tech (85-61 on Feb. 24) marked the first time since the Irish joined the BIG EAST they had won five consecutive road games in the league.

Mr. Indiana:

Freshman point guard Chris Thomas is the first Mr. Basketball from Indiana to attend Notre Dame. He played in the McDonald's All-American game and was a fourth team Parade All-American honoree. He led high Pike high school team to the Class 4-A state championship as a senior after averaging 23.3 points, 5.7 assists and 3.7 steals. Thomas is the 12th McDonald's All-American to attend Notre Dame.

Miller Time:

Dan Miller, a 6-8, 220-pound guard/forward from Mt. Holly, N.J., has transferred to Notre Dame from the University of Maryland following three seasons. He has one year of eligibility remaining with the 2002-03 campaign. Miller was a former McDonald's and Parade All-American at Rancocas Valley High School.

Head Coach Mike Brey

University of Notre Dame Men's Basketball Coach

Brey's squad clinched the league crown with a week to go before the end of the regular season.

In his debut on the Irish sidelines on Nov. 18, the 42-year-old Rockville, Md., led the Irish to a 104-58 victory to earn his 100th career coaching victory. Brey guided his team to 19 wins during the regular season, the most by an Irish first-year coach, and also became just the second coach in school history to take his team to the NCAA tournament in his first season.

During the run to the divisional crown, Notre Dame notched eight consecutive league wins and five straight road victories for the first time as a BIG EAST member. The Irish also produced three wins over top 10 teams (Georgetown, Boston and Syracuse) for the first time since the 1991-92 campaign.

In six seasons as a head coach, his teams have produced a 119-62 mark for a 65.7 winning percentage while winning three conference titles.

And while the accomplishments of the past year and in his coaching career are impressive, one can't help but be captivated by his contagious enthusiasm and genuine sincerity. He's a man whose basketball bloodlines are as impressive as any young coach in the collegiate ranks today and a man who clearly has Notre Dame back on the path to basketball glory.

A players' coach, Brey has a true passion for the game. He is an individual who appreciates the bonds and relationships he forms with his players, and a coach who understands the impact he can have on an player's life. He is, in no uncertain terms, a man who cares about the young men he coaches.

Reared in a home with two parents as educators, coaching appears to have been a natural profession for Brey to pursue. Associations with legendary coaches Morgan Wootten and Mike Krzyzewski have molded his philosophy and strengthened his foundation as a man and coach who is destined to lead Notre Dame's return to national prominence.

A former player and assistant coach for Wootten at De Matha High School and a veteran of eight seasons as an assistant on the bench next to Krzyzewski at Duke, where he helped the Blue Devils to six NCAA Final Four appearances and two national championships, success been an integral part of Brey's life as both a player and coach.

Having missed out on the Irish head coaching vacancy in March of 1999, Brey earned another shot at the only coaching job he coveted while the head coach at Delaware. When Matt Doherty left for the University of North Carolina in July after just one season, Brey was the man director of athletics Kevin White targeted for the Notre Dame post.

On the afternoon he was introduced as the Irish head coach, Brey made certain that current players, administrators and fans knew that this was the place where he wanted to be.

"I've been in love with two coaching jobs in my five years as a head coach," he said as he stood on the podium situated on the floor of the Joyce Center, "and that's Notre Dame twice."

Brey's impact on the program has been quickly felt with his team winning the BIG EAST West Division title and guiding the Irish to their first NCAA tournament berth in 11 years as his squad earned an sixth seed in the Midwest Region. The Irish won its first NCAA tournament game in 12 years when they defeated Xavier 83-71, before falling to No. 3 seed Mississippi, 59-56, in the second round.

Notre Dame finished 19th and 23rd in the final Associated Press and ESPN/USA Today polls last year which marked the first time since the 1986-87 campaign that an Irish team finished the season ranked. It's stretch of eight consecutive league wins also was the longest of any conference team during the regular season.

Brey, who led Delaware to unprecedented success during his five-year tenure as the Blue Hens' head coach from 1995-2000 which included postseason bids in each of his last three seasons, has brought to Notre Dame a wealth of basketball experience and all the characteristics necessary for success.

On the day of Brey's hiring White made perfectly clear why he (Brey) emerged as his one and only choice.

In just one season as the Notre Dame men's basketball coach, Mike Brey has put the Irish men's basketball program back on the college basketball map with a championship banner hanging in the Joyce Center as proof.

Less than nine months after being named head coach in July of 2000, Brey guided Notre Dame to its first BIG EAST crown as the Irish won the league's West Division championship. What followed was something that had eluded the program for more than a decade — an NCAA tournament berth and NCAA tournament victory for the first time since 1990 and 1989, respectively.

Brey's first season with the Irish could qualify as anything short of a whirlwind for the 14-year veteran of the college game who prior to coming to Notre Dame had spent eight seasons as an assistant at Duke University and five as the head coach at the University of Delaware. Named the 17th head coach, in the program's history on July 14, 2000, Brey assembled his coaching staff, moved his family to the South Bend, Ind., area and got to work. From the moment he was introduced as Notre Dame's head coach, it was a non-stop journey until the season ended on March 18 with a second round loss in the NCAA tournament.

In addition to the BIG EAST regular season crown, it was a season of firsts for Brey and his team as Notre Dame finished the season with a 20-10 record and 11-5 conference mark. The 11 wins marked the most by an Irish team since the inaugural campaign in 1995-96 as

"Mike Brey brings to Notre Dame all the characteristics and elements you'd like to see in a college basketball coach," White said.

"His experiences along the way — at De Matha, at Duke and at Delaware — provide him with a tremendous background for what he will encounter at Notre Dame. Of course I talked to dozens of coaches and administrators as well as select others throughout this process, and there wasn't a single person who didn't have the highest regard for Mike both professionally and personally. With that said, I truly believe that our men's basketball program is going to have some great opportunities in the future and I am confident that Mike is the ideal person to lead the Irish program wherein we can expect to realize our full potential."

In the span of five seasons at Delaware, he guided the Blue Hens to success never before experienced in the program's history. His five years at Delaware combined to produce a 99-52 record for Brey, including a 60-30 mark in America East competition.

Prior to his arrival at the Newark, Del., school, Delaware had made only two previous trips to the NCAA tournament — but doubled that total in his third and fourth seasons. In 1997-98, Brey copped co-America East coach-of-the-year honors after his team finished with a 20-10 overall record and won the America East Conference title with a 12-6 mark. The Blue Hens earned the No. 15 seed in the NCAA Midwest Regional and lost to Purdue in the first round.

That campaign signaled what would be the first of three consecutive 20-win seasons for Brey at Delaware, a first in the program's history. In Brey's first two seasons, the Blue Hens were 30-28, finishing with a 15-12 mark in 1995-96 and 15-16 record in 1996-97.

In his fourth season at Delaware, he guided the Blue Hens to a 25-6 record, the second-most wins in school history. For the second straight year, Brey's squad won the America East regular-season crown (finishing with a 15-3 record) and tournament title. As the No. 13 seed in the NCAA East Regional, the Blue Hens pushed 20th-ranked Tennessee to the final buzzer, but fell 62-52.

In 1999-2000, Delaware finished 24-8 (14-4 in conference play) and received a bid to the National Invitation Tournament, losing to Villanova in the first round.

His teams' on-court success during the past five seasons helped set Delaware attendance records as well. The Blue Hens in 1998-99 averaged a record 4,815 fans (in 5,000-seat Bob Carpenter Center), including nine sellouts. Then in 1999-2000, they topped that figure with a 4,989 average and a dozen sellouts.

In Brey's five seasons with the Blue Hens, Delaware ranked as the only America East team to finish in the top half of the league standings in each of those seasons. His .657 winning percentage over the last six years ranks as the second best in the country (behind only Michigan State's Tom Izzo) among those Division I head coaches who took over programs in 1995-96.

Success for Brey's teams was not limited to the court. While at Delaware, every senior who completed his eligibility graduated. Mike Pegues, an all-America East forward, was a third-team GTE Academic All-American and America East Scholar-Athlete of the Year for 1997-98.

Off the court, Brey proved to be a driving force in bringing the Philadelphia 76ers training camp as well as the first-ever on-site America East Conference Men's Basketball Tournament to the Bob Carpenter Center, with Delaware as the host.

He and his wife, Tish, were very involved in the local Newark community. The two were very active in the Coaches vs. Cancer program, helping make Delaware one of the top fund-raising schools in the country through that program.

Prior to taking over at Delaware, Brey served under Krzyzewski at Duke for eight seasons beginning in 1987-88. During that time, he saw the Blue Devils advance to six NCAA Final Fours, four national title games and claim the NCAA championship in both 1991 and 1992. The Blue Devils finished a combined 216-65 (.769) during his eight seasons and won 24 or more games in seven of those campaigns.

During his tenure at Duke, he recruited and worked daily with four of the greatest players in that program's history — Danny Ferry, Christian Laettner, Bobby Hurley and Grant Hill.

Already his recruiting impact has been felt on the Notre Dame program with the enrollment of McDonalds and Parade All-American Chris Thomas in the fall of 2001.

Brey previously spent five seasons as an assistant coach at his high school alma mater, De Matha High School in Hyattsville, Md., under Wootten before taking the assistant's post at Duke. He served as head junior varsity coach and varsity assistant beginning in 1982. During the five years he spent there, De Matha combined to finish 139-22, while claiming four league crowns and two city titles — as well as a number-one ranking by USA Today in 1984.

As a player, he played for two seasons at De Matha and helped the Stags finish with a combined 55-9 record.

A standout guard in college, he played three seasons at Northwestern Louisiana State (now Northwestern State) from 1977-80, leading the team in assists and steals all three years. He still ranks fifth at the school all-time in assists with 311, while his 180 assists during his sophomore season in 1978-79 rank as the fourth best single-season total in school history.

Brey played his final collegiate season at George Washington after transferring to the Washington, D.C., school following the 1979-80 season. After sitting out the 1980-81 season, he averaged 5.0 points and 4.8 rebounds in his senior season with the Colonials. He served as team captain and earned team MVP honors in his only year of competition at the school.

Brey hails from an athletic family that still remains actively involved in high school and collegiate athletics. His father, Paul, was a high school athletic director in Maryland, while his mother, the former Betty Mullen, was the women's swim coach at George Washington, and perhaps the family's most accomplished athlete. She attended Purdue University and swam for the AAU team in West Lafayette while attending school. For a time, she held the world record in the 50-meter butterfly and competed with the U.S. team at the 1956 Olympics in Melbourne, Australia. She still competes in masters swimming events and is a member of the Indiana Swimming Hall of Fame, located in Indianapolis, Ind.

His mother also was a Purdue major-ette and was present in Notre Dame Stadium on Oct. 2, 1954, when the 19th-ranked Boilermakers upset the top-ranked Irish 27-14 in football. In addition, her brother, Jack, played guard at Duke on that school's first Atlantic Coast Conference championship team in 1960.

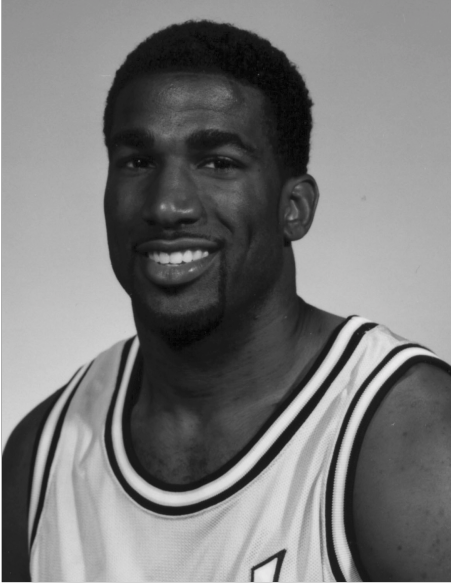

Brey's younger sister, Brenda, swam competitively at LSU, and is a physical education teacher in the Rockville area. His younger brother, Shane, a former high school standout at Walter Johnson High School in Bethesda, Md., currently serves as an assistant athletic director at Delaware.

Born March 22, 1959, Brey is a 1982 graduate of George Washington, with a degree in physical education. He is married to the former Tish Schlapo, a former volleyball standout at George Washington and assistant volleyball coach at Delaware. The couple has two children — Kyle, 14 (born Jan. 11, 1987), and Callie, 11 (born April 5, 1990)
